Subject: Penalty Phase

Dear Sir or Madam,

Microsoft was found to have violated US law. The remedies that have been shared with the public fall short of what is needed to correct the situation and redress the damage done by Microsoft's unlawful activities. Indeed, the penalties seem to have been designed by Microsoft's own brilliant marketing department.

If the these one-sided "remedies" stand, it will undermine the government as a force for fairness and justice. With what is going on in the world today, this is not the time for the Department of Justice to undermine the perception of the United States as a fair and just country.

Respectfully,

Thomas L. Wood
